

Request to Appear at the Section 301 Hearing

Hearing Information: USTR will hold a hearing in connection with the Section 301 investigation on September 3, 2025.

Presenter: Sueme Mori de Andrade

Organization: Brazilian Confederation of Agriculture and Livestock (CNA)

Summary of Testimony:

The Brazilian Confederation of Agriculture and Livestock (CNA) represents over five million commercial rural producers in Brazil, across small, medium, and large-scale operations. CNA is dedicated to promoting professional training, social development, research, and the defense of producers' interests before the federal government, Congress, and courts. We are committed to a fair, transparent, and rules-based international trade system, aligned with World Trade Organization principles, and value constructive bilateral cooperation with the United States.

Key Points:

1. Tariffs and Preferential Trade Agreements:

Brazil's trade policy is fully compliant with WTO rules, applying Most Favored Nation (MFN) tariffs in over 90% of product lines. Preferential agreements, such as ACE 53 and ACE 55 with Mexico, and MERCOSUL–India, represent only a small share of total trade and are limited to specific sectors. These agreements are transparent, negotiated under recognized international frameworks, and do not discriminate against U.S. exports. In contrast, the U.S. has comprehensive free trade agreements with 20 countries, illustrating the global acceptability of selective trade preferences.

2. Ethanol Market Access:

U.S. ethanol exports to Brazil are treated on the basis of MFN tariffs, ensuring non-discriminatory access. Brazil's policies provide a level playing field for ethanol imports, fostering fair competition while supporting the sustainable growth of the domestic biofuel industry.

3. Illegal Deforestation and Environmental Compliance:

Brazil maintains a robust and legally rigorous environmental framework, including the Forest Code, the Environmental Crimes Law, and advanced monitoring systems such as PRODES, DETEC, and SICAR. Enforcement actions include administrative embargos, fines, and sanctions that ensure compliance. All Brazilian agricultural products, including exports to the U.S., adhere to these laws, guaranteeing legal, sustainable, and traceable production. Brazil is committed to zero illegal deforestation by 2030, consistent with the Paris Agreement, balancing economic development and environmental protection.

Conclusion:

CNA affirms that Brazilian trade and environmental policies are transparent, lawful, and aligned with international commitments. Preferential tariffs, ethanol market rules, and environmental enforcement promote sustainable development without unjustly harming U.S. interests. Constructive dialogue and mutual recognition of sustainable practices are essential to maintaining fair trade and fostering economic growth. Brazilian agribusiness is a responsible, competitive, and strategic global partner, fully committed to environmental protection and fair trade.
